

Radnor Capital Partners is pleased to announce that it will be working with Good Energy Group PLC.

Founded in 1999, a time when 98% of the UK energy came from fossil fuels, Good Energy's mission is now as it was then — to be a leading part of the transformation of the UK energy market to low carbon. The company supplies UK generated, 100% renewable electricity to thousands of business and householders in the UK, as well as providing services to an ever-increasing prosumer market, where customers generate their own renewable power.

“We are commencing work with the Radnor team at an exciting time of continued progress for the business and delivery of our strategic objectives. Good Energy has a large addressable market of business customers and ‘eco worrier’ householders who want to do their bit to stop climate change.

Through working with Radnor, we will deliver this message to investors in a coherent, targeted and impactful manner. The UK energy market is changing, and investors can benefit from this change.”

Juliet Davenport, Chief Executive
Good Energy Group

“Good Energy is a leading company in the renewable energy sector, and is more than just a traditional energy supplier, being a wider integrator of services in the emerging decentralised, low carbon energy markets.

We believe the equity story is not being well understood or recognised in the broader market. This lack of investor understanding, and awareness is itself a function of the pace of change within the business and the UK energy market. We will be focused on getting the right message out to a highly targeted, relevant investor base.

This caps off another excellent year of progress for Radnor Capital Partners. As the impacts of MiFID II continue to be felt by listed companies, we are perfectly positioned to help companies like Good Energy achieve their capital market goals.”
